Why Hire an Ohio State College of Veterinary Medicine Graduate?

Our students have unique opportunities throughout their veterinary medicine education that prepares them to be leaders in the field of veterinary medicine and assets to your practice and business.

- Robust pre-clinical curriculum
- Clinical training at one of the largest veterinary medical centers in the country, provides exposure to more than 35,000 patient visits a year
- Unique rotations including practical experience with equine, farm animals, and shelter medicine; students perform up to 20 spay and neuter surgeries
- Career Area of Emphasis that combines a well-balanced education with extended, specific training
- Emphasis on professional development curriculum and communication training
- Optional Graduate Business Minor in Health Sciences
- Summer research opportunities

"I have found the Office of Career Management to be a great resource. The students I have interviewed and worked with are definitely very aware and knowledgeable about the factors that make them more marketable to DVMs looking for new associates. Additionally, Amanda referred a great student extern to our practice, who was able to get some valuable experience over this past summer. I would encourage any veterinarian looking for a new (or lightly used) associate to first contact Amanda or Kelsey. The Office of Career Management is one more reason Ohio State College of Veterinary Medicine graduates are as well prepared as any to enter the profession, ready to succeed."

"When looking for an addition to my practice, I called several veterinary schools, and only Ohio State had an Office of Career Management. I called the office and Kelsey handled everything. She advertised the position, set up the venue, scheduled the appointments and coordinated the interviews. All I had to do was show up and talk to the students. They came prepared, dressed appropriately, and presented a very professional impression. The office provides a much needed service for both the students and the veterinary community."

- John T. Manolukas, DVM, PhD
Ohio State DVM Alumnus

"I cannot imagine what the job search was like for students before the Office of Career Management. Amanda has helped me with everything in the job search process, from providing leads on jobs to revising my resume and cover letter to offering advice. She is truly indispensable and I would not be in the position I am now without her help."

- Austin Kleman, Class of 2014
